Chloe Sevigny talks climate change denial and 'The Dead Don't Die'

It's hard not to get caught up with how scary the current environmental crisis facing our suffering planet is. While many people do their best to make a difference in their day-to-day lives, given their good intentions, they still want to believe that it is all going to work out in the end. In the new zombie horror-comedy "The Dead Don't Die" by indie-cinema auteur Jim Jarmusch, the filmmaker poses this question over and over again: What if we're already too far gone to turn back?

The film is centered around three police officers in the town of Centerville, played by Bill Murray, Adam Driver and Chloe Sevigny as they try to battle off a horde of the living dead that have risen from the grave after energy companies have caused the Earth to stop moving on its axis through "polar fracking." While Driver's character, Ronnie Peterson, keeps trying to hammer the severity of the situation across by refraining in a classic Jarmusch deadpan, "This is not going to end well," Sevigny's Mindy Morrison chooses to keep her head dug into the sand, believing that the evil will all go away — a feeling that mirrors that of many people who choose to disengage with our current situation.

"I was thinking about a lot of those people that are just in denial," says Sevigny, of channeling that kind of misplaced optimism, as we meet in a hotel suite on a rainy day in SoHo. "Then again, she is driving a Prius and she's probably doing her part but she's not fighting capitalism, which is probably the only way. Jim likes to say the environmental crisis isn't political. But to me, it is. How are we going to change policies? That is the only way we are going to make some sort of big shift. Of course it's not political in the fact that yes, we all have to accept that this is happening. It's daunting and it's frightening. How does one do that? I compost, I recycle, I try to not use single-use plastic, which is really hard. I'm thinking before every purchase, before I get a disposable fork, to even eat with my hands if I can. Garbage gives me untold anxiety. But, I fly all of the time [laughs]! So, how can we make a difference? It's terrifying."

As a strong presence on- and offscreen, Sevigny had a hard time playing into this kind of "damsel in distress" character for the film, but ultimately knew that she would be in the right hands under the direction of Jarmusch.

"I was really nervous that I was going to be the one that nobody was going to pay attention to," says Sevigny. "I thought he was writing to everyone's strengths and I was like, what are my strengths? What is he writing here? Who is this person? She is a trope, but it was very hard to access her for me. I was really nervous that I was going to look like I was in a different movie. I was really insecure on the set, actually. Because they are all doing this one thing and I am here trying to keep alive this other thing. I just had to put my trust in Jim and hope he wouldn't make me look like an a—hole [laughs]."

The film boasts one of the most star-studded and flat-out "cool" casts that Jarmusch has ever assembled onscreen, which is saying something for him. Stars and well-known faces like Selena Gomez, Steve Buscemi, Tilda Swinton, Iggy Pop, Tom Waits and RZA all show up for memorable performances. For Sevigny, she had no idea what the cast would be like going into the film. But given Jarmusch's track record, he always gets an automatic "yes" when he offers her a role.

"I don't know if he said anything about the casting," she says. "He sent me a letter and he said he wanted to make a ridiculous zombie movie. ... But I always know that he gets great casts. Over and over, through all of his movies, half of it is the casting. I said I would sign on even before reading the script."

For Sevigny, being around Tilda Swinton, who plays the otherworldly samurai-sword-wielding Scottish mortician Zelda Winston, was like being in contact with life from another planet. But overall, the friendly atmosphere showed through from a cast of characters who have remained in Jarmusch's orbit throughout the years.

"She is like a creature from another planet," says Sevigny of Swinton's alien elegance. "Just being around her. Just her stature and the way she moves and seeing her wielding that sword ... I was just in awe of her and the way she communicates with people. Of course, she had worked with Jim before, and he has most of the same crew around, so she knew all of the people. Same with Adam and same with Bill, and a little bit with me. I had worked with Fred Elms before on "Broken Flowers." It's very easygoing. We're all in the flow. Therefore, there's an ease and a casualness. It's nice."

"The Dead Don't Die" will rise from the grave and hit theaters on Friday, June 14.

Looking for some fun and unique things to do in Philly this weekend? We've got you covered.

FAMILY

SUPER HERO SATURDAY

The Cherry Hill Mall has partnered with Franklin Institute and its "Marvel: Universe of Super Heroes" exhibit to launch an event this Saturday that is truly out of this world. Bring the whole family to meet famous Marvel characters, join in on fun activities, check out in-store promotions, enjoy live music and more. The event will also highlight local superheroes and include an awards ceremony to honor their impact in the community. Super Hero Saturday is free, but registration on Eventbrite is required. June 15, noon-3 p.m., Cherry Hill Mall, 2000 NJ-38, Cherry Hill, NJ, cherryhillmall.com

"It me." Gritty will be making a special appearance at Photo Pop Philly to host a special summer bash. There will be lawn games for everyone to join in on, a live DJ, specialty giveaways and enticing samples of Scoop DeVille's Gritty-flavored ice cream to try. Any family who purchases tickets for 1 p.m. will also have the chance to win four tickets to a 2019 home game and a family 4-pack to Photo Pop Philly at a later date. June 15, tickets available for 11 a.m.-2 p.m., Photo Pop Philly at The Bourse Food Hall, 111 S. Independence Mall E., $27-$30, photopopphilly.com

FOOD & DRINK

ROWHOUSE GROCERY CLASSES

Head down to South Philly hot spot Rowhouse Grocery to check out its impressive selection of produce, treats, homemade bites and more. Guests can also partake in fun and informative classes. On June 14 at 6 p.m., join in on Intro to Japanese Water Stone Sharpening with Steve Pellegrino of Pellegrino Cutlery and then be sure to get some goodie shopping done after the class ends. June 14, 6-8 p.m., Rowhouse Grocery, 1713 McKean St., $15-$30, rowhousegrocery.com

PHILLY FOOD TRUCK FESTIVAL

If you love food trucks, Christmas just came early. There will be over 20 tasty and unique trucks serving up sweet and savory bites that will tickle anyone's fancy. The Philadelphia Soul Football team will be in attendance, plus there will be inflatable soccer games for the kiddos with the Philadelphia Union soccer league and a live performance from Dawson Coyle, runner-up from "The Voice" season 12. One hundred percent of proceeds will go toward sending children with autism and their families to summer camp programs and other events throughout the year. June 15, 11 a.m., FDR Park, 1500 Pattison Ave., free, fdrparkphilly.org

MUSIC

"RAIDERS OF THE LOST ARK" WITH THE READING SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Hear the incredible score from the movie that started it all for Indiana Jones and enjoy an unbelievably unique experience, all in one night. "Raiders of the Lost Ark" will play on a 40-foot screen and two jumbo lawn screens while the Reading Symphony Orchestra performs John Williams' awe-inspiring score during this jaw-dropping music extravaganza. It all starts at 8 p.m.; doors open at 6 p.m. June 15, 8 p.m., The Mann Center for the Performing Arts, 5201 Parkside Ave., $25-$70, manncenter.org

BACHATA & SALSA ON THE ROCKY STEPS

Flags used to have advertisements on them. ALL PHOTOS MOAR

Lucky number 13

The Museum of the American Revolution is making history this weekend. MOLLY GIVEN

The Museum of the American Revolution is used to displaying history, but this weekend, they are making it. MOAR will be home to the first-ever large-scale 13-star flag display in our country's history. Every flag in the collection is authentic, unique and one-of-a-kind; in fact, some have never even been displayed before.

The exhibit, "A New Constellation: A Collection of Historic 13-Star Flags," will be on view from Flag Day, Friday, June 14, through Sunday, July 21, 2019. Originally, the exhibit was supposed to call MOAR home until the 14th, but already the buzz this incredible exhibit has created is unprecedented.

According to the release, because there was no official star pattern for the American national flag until 1912, the design was left up to the artistic liberties of the maker. The flags in this exhibit feature 32 different arrangements of 13 stars, representing the 13 colonies that declared independence from Great Britain during the Revolutionary War.

Jeff Bridgman, a leading dealer in antique American flags and political textiles, is loaning the awe-inspiring antiques to MOAR. Bridgman has an astronomical amount of flags in his collection — about 2,500, to be exact — including the 750 13-star editions. Bridgman is loaning 40 of his historic gems to MOAR for the exciting exhibition.

Bridgman has been a collector since he was a kid; however, his interests graduated from little knickknacks to historical artifacts fairly quickly. "Most of my focus is 19th century," says Bridgman. "I've been doing this for 30 years now and I started doing flags at a serious level about 20 years ago."

So where did Bridgman acquire such a unique collection from? "All sources under the sun," says Bridgman. "Private individuals, pickers, other dealers, collectors, estate attorneys, sometimes little historical societies even. Also, a ton of people contact me."

The flags vary in size, color and design along with proportions. Each American flag up until the early 20th century is vastly different. But that's something that interests Bridgman along with many other Americans. "There's a flag where the stars are sort of arranged to spell the letter 'U' and 'S.' I think that's a particularly interesting one," says Bridgman. Another highlight includes a flag that has a design arranging the 13 stars to form a large single star. Other flags even have sales ads on them, which was the norm back in the 19th century.

This exhibit is truly unique, and Bridgman is happy to be a part of educating Philadelphians as well as creating history — something he and MOAR are already so taken with. "This is the first large-scale exhibit of 13-star flags in American history. It's never been done," says Bridgman. "You'll learn something about 13-star American flags from the beginning in the 18th century through the first part of the 20th century."

As a bonus to this already incredible temporary installation, guests who head to MOAR this weekend (June 14-16) can add a stitch to a reproduction of a Revolutionary flag and try cutting a six-pointed star like the ones on Washington's Standard. Guests can also participate in a flag-themed scavenger hunt in the museum's galleries.

Anyone who visits the exhibit during and after this weekend will also receive a miniature version of the commander in chief's Standard, the flag that marked George Washington's presence on the battlefield, to take home. The flag these gifts are modeled after is believed to be the earliest surviving 13-star American flag, and it is on display in the exhibit as well.

According to the release, tickets to the museum can be purchased by calling 215-253-6731 or at amrevmuseum.org.

The Museum of the American Revolution is located at 101 S. 3rd St.

Everything you need to know about Bradley Cooper's appearance with the Philadelphia Orchestra

GETTY

The Philly native will narrate "Candide" alongside actress Carey Mulligan.

Philly hometown hero Bradley Cooper will perform with the Philadelphia Orchestra while paying homage to one of the great American composers.

Cooper and "The Great Gatsby" star Carey Mulligan will join the orchestra for three performances of Leonard Bernstein's "Candide" June 20-22. Expect a modern yet still retro twist on the performance, narrated by the Academy Award-nominated actors. Stage Director Kevin Newbury brings the story to life by setting the comedic opera in a nostalgic '90s high school classroom. Think of iconic characters from classic coming-of-age stories like "Ferris Bueller's Day Off" and campy antics from "Buffy the Vampire Slayer." The "Candide" cast will also resemble a lineup of unlikely detention buddies from "The Breakfast Club": the nerd, the popular cheerleader, the goth kid and one starry-eyed drama club president.

Research on classical music and Leonard Bernstein connected Cooper with Philadelphia Orchestra Music Director Yannick Nezet-Seguin. Cooper was spotted while attending a performance led by Nezet-Seguin, who also serves as the music director for the Metropolitan Opera. After the success of "A Star Is Born," Cooper has been working on a biopic about Bernstein's life. Cooper will both direct the film and play the role of the legendary "West Side Story" composer.

Like Cooper, Bernstein also had ties to Philly. He studied conducting at the Curtis Institute of Music. Bernstein's "Candide" operetta is an adaptation of Voltaire's satire, originally published in 1759. The opera combines a beautiful score with a more comedic take on an operatic tragedy. This run of "Candide" concludes the Philadelphia Orchestra's Leonard Bernstein Centennial Celebration.

The story, set in Westphalia, follows the unlikely love story between the illegitimate nephew of a baron and the baron's beautiful daughter. Tenor Alek Shrader plays the part of Candide, a.k.a. the nerd, during his debut with the Philadelphia Orchestra, with soprano Erin Morley co-starring as love interest Cunegonde. After becoming engaged, the baron exiles Candide. Philosopher Dr. Pangloss (Kevin Vortmann) teaches the lost lovers about pursuing love and adventure through the power of optimism. The three find themselves entangled in a series of mishaps featuring swindlers, saviors and disaster. Philadelphia Orchestra's twist on this story makes it a little bit more relatable for an audience as high school antics are told through opera and narrated by Cooper and Mulligan. The modern setting and interpretation of Voltaire's work open up the performance for political and social commentary, including topics like sexuality and race.

Bernstein's work spanned Broadway and the symphony, which serves as an inspiration for conductor Nezet-Seguin. During an interview with classical radio station WRTI 90.1 FM last fall, Nezet-Seguin called Bernstein an "all-around genius" and a true musician for his ability to bring "so-called popular and serious music" together in harmony. Bernstein's legacy is upheld by his estate run by his children, who granted exclusive musical rights to the production companies involved in Cooper's upcoming biopic.

Cooper is known for celebrating his Philly roots, and is often spotted in Eagles gear. His love for Philly came to life on the big screen while portraying Eagles superfan Patrizio "Pat" Solitano Jr. in "Silver Linings Playbook." The film was nominated for eight Academy Awards, including Best Actor. Mulligan is rumored to co-star alongside Cooper in his upcoming film about Bernstein.

"Candide" will be performed June 20-22 in the Verizon Hall at the Kimmel Center, located at 300 S. Broad St. For more information, showtimes and tickets, visit philorch.org.

3 Fun things to do in Atlantic City this weekend

Check out what's happening down by the beach. MOLLY GIVEN

Philadelphia has a lot to offer, but so does the coastal town Atlantic City. The city has grown exponentially over the past few years and is no longer just a casino or beach destination, it's a place to escape and indulge in fun activities and escapades. Here are three fun things to do in Atlantic City this weekend.

Tom Segura

The well-known comedian is hitting the stage in Atlantic City for one night only. Segura hit it big co-hosting the daily podcast "Your Mom's House" and has also made a name for himself in several comedy competitions including "Comic View: One Mic Stand." Segura also recently launched his Netflix special, which marks his second one to date for the popular streaming service. June 15, 9 p.m., Ocean Casino, 500 Boardwalk, prices vary, theoceanac.com

Wu-Tang Clan

The iconic band, once called "the greatest hip-hop band of all time" is coming to Atlantic City this weekend. The group will be performing some of their greatest hits including "Method Man," "C.R.E.A.M," "Protect Ya Neck," "Wu-Tang," "Can It All Be So Simple" and more. The group is celebrating their 25th anniversary this year, and in recognition, are touring around the world to commemorate the momentous occasion. June 15, 8 p.m., Borgata Event Center, 1 Borgata Way, Borgata Hotel, Casino & Spa, theborgata.com

FBI investigating American deaths at DR resorts

Three Americans died at resorts there within five days.

The FBI is investigating the deaths of three Americans staying at resorts in the Dominican Republic in recent weeks, NPR reported Wednesday.

Since news of the deaths broke, relatives of four other Americans who died there over the past year have spoken up, including real estate mogul and "Shark Tank" judge Barbara Corcoran.

Similarities among the deaths have been reported: They happened suddenly, several after having an alcoholic drink. But authorities have not established a connection.

Robin Bernstein, U.S. ambassador to the Dominican Republic, said the FBI is conducting toxicology tests, which could take up to a month to complete.

"The safety and security of U.S. citizens that live in, work in, and visit the Dominican Republic remains our highest priority," said Bernstein in a statement. "These incidents are tragic and we offer our deepest condolences to those personally impacted."

Meanwhile, the families of Maryland couple Nathaniel Holmes, 63, and Cynthia Ann Day, 49, have flown their bodies back to the U.S. and are preparing to have autopsies and toxicology tests performed. The couple, who were engaged, were found dead in their room at the Grand Bahia Principe La Romana resort on May 30. An autopsy in the Dominican Republic found that both died of respiratory failure and pulmonary edema, a condition in which the lungs fill with fluid.

> "The safety and security of U.S. citizens that live in, work in, and visit the Dominican Republic remains our highest priority."
> Robin Bernstein, U.S. ambassador to the Dominican Republic

Five days earlier, Miranda Schaup-Werner, 41, died of the same cause after checking in to a resort owned by the same company. She experienced respiratory failure not long after consuming a drink from the minibar in her hotel room, authorities in the Dominican Republic said.

On Wednesday, Corcoran said her brother John, 65, was found dead in his hotel room of a heart attack while vacationing in the Dominican Republic in April.

On June 6, family members of Pennsylvanian Yvette Monique Sport, 51, told NBC 10 she died last June at a Bahia Principe hotel after she drank a beverage from the hotel's minibar.

But Bernstein, the U.S. ambassador, said a link between the older and newer cases is not yet evident. "At this time, we have no indication of any connection between those tragic losses and the cases currently under investigation," she said.

Six million people visit the Dominican Republic each year, half of those from the United States.

Calls to fire Conway, comments violate law: Watchdogs group

A government watchdog agency on Thursday recommended Kellyanne Conway, a senior adviser to President Donald Trump, be fired for repeatedly violating U.S. law with political comments while serving in the White House.

The White House immediately rejected the special counsel office's ruling and demanded that it withdraw the report.

A statement from the Office of Special Counsel cited Conway's comments in television interviews and social media posts as violations of the Hatch Act, a 1939 law prohibiting executive branch employees from engaging in some political activities. The president, vice president and certain other senior officials are exempted.

The OSC referred to disparaging comments Conway made about Democratic presidential candidates.

REUTERS

"Given that Ms. Conway is a repeat offender and has shown disregard for the law, OSC recommends that she be removed from federal service," the statement said.

Conway, 52, served as Trump's campaign manager in 2016, becoming the first woman to head a winning presidential campaign, and is one of his most loyal aides and fiercest defenders.

She currently is leading White House efforts on reducing deaths by opioids and Trump likely would be loathe to have her leave the White House right when he is cranking up his re-election campaign.

White House deputy press secretary Steven Groves said the OSC action violated Conway's constitutional rights to free speech and due process and was pushed by media pressure and liberal organizations.

"Based on the numerous errors in the report and the flawed process under which it was issued, we ask that you withdraw and retract the report and continue the dialogue with this office that should have taken place and that could have avoided many of the errors in the current draft," said a letter to the OSC from White House legal counsel Pat Cipollone.

Last month, Conway was critical of former Vice President Joe Biden, one of the leading Democrats seeking to unseat Trump in 2020, in conversations with reporters at the White House. REUTERS

Two dozen police hurt in Memphis street clashes after marshals kill black man

Brandon Webber, 20, was shot after ramming his vehicle into U.S. Marshals vehicles.

A group of young people hug each other in front of a high school the day after violent clashes between police and protesters in the streets of Memphis, Tennessee. REUTERS

At least two dozen police officers were injured in overnight clashes with protesters, some throwing rocks, in Memphis, Tennessee, after U.S. Marshals Service agents fatally shot a black man during an attempted arrest, officials said on Thursday.

The man, identified as 20-year-old Brandon Webber, was shot by the agents after he rammed his vehicle into their vehicles as they sought to arrest him on multiple warrants at about 7 p.m. on Wednesday in the working-class neighborhood of Frayser, according to the Tennessee Bureau of Investigation.

Public records show that Webber was arrested five times, for driving violations and on charges that included possession of drug paraphernalia and marijuana. The outcome of those arrests was not clear from the records. The bureau said Webber was carrying an unspecified weapon when he got out of his vehicle.

At least 24 officers and deputies were injured, with six hospitalized, during the confrontation, Mayor Jim Strickland said in a statement, adding that two journalists also were injured. The injuries were mostly minor, police said, and the crowd eventually dispersed. It was not clear how many civilians were hurt or whether anyone was arrested.

Shortly before he was shot, Webber posted a live video on Facebook that showed him in a car, rapping and apparently smoking a marijuana cigarette. In the video, he looked out the window and said he saw police. With a laugh, he looked directly into the camera and said the officers would "have to kill me."

Authorities did not state the reason for the arrest warrants.

The tense scene afterward raised the possibility of more disturbances in the predominantly black city, evoking memories of a string of sometimes violent protests against police brutality that broke out in other cities in recent years. Those clashes, notably many days of protests after an unarmed black man was killed in Ferguson, Missouri, in 2014, gave rise to the Black Lives Matter movement.

The Marshals Service, an arm of the U.S. Justice Department, arrests fugitives, among other roles.

As news of the death spread, an angry crowd estimated at about 300 people gathered in the streets. Some threw rocks and spat at the police, the mayor said in his statement. Police strapped on protective riot gear and tried to control the crowd by spraying chemicals, according to officials and media reports. Video footage of the protests showed one man bashing a police car with a chair. The mayor said "multiple police cars" were vandalized. REUTERS

Phillies bats dormant with trip to NL East-leading Braves next

What was expected to be a lethal offense has yet to deliver so far in 2019.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

Cesar Hernandez is just one of several Phillies struggling at the plate over the past two weeks. GETTY IMAGES

The Phillies are looking up at the Atlanta Braves in the National League East standings.

That's the byproduct of a sputtering offense.

The Phillies wasted a brilliant outing from Zach Eflin on Wednesday night, losing 2-0 at Citizens Bank Park.

Eflin went eight innings strong, allowing just two runs while striking out nine with a single walk. It was the 25-year-old's second-straight quality start after returning to a brief stint on the injured list due to back issues.

The Phillies' offense — without Bryce Harper for the first time this year as he was given the night off — mustered just three hits against the combination of Merrill Kelly, Andrew Chafin, and Greg Holland.

That isn't necessarily the most imposing set of arms.

But that's how things have gone recently for the Phillies bats, who have been held to three runs or fewer in seven of their last 13 games.

New left fielder Jay Bruce has shouldered a considerable amount of the offensive load since being acquired from the Seattle Mariners.

In his first nine games with the club, he's batting .333 with five home runs and 13 RBI. But even he's fallen off considerably over his last six games, batting just .227.

Out of the eight Phillies players who played in at least five of their last six games, only JT Realmuto and Rhys Hoskins are hitting over .300.

Headlining the struggles has been second baseman Cesar Hernandez, who has taken over for Andrew McCutchen in the lead-off spot since the veteran outfielder went down with a torn ACL.

In the last eight games in which he's batted lead-off, Hernandez is batting a puny .125, including a .091 mark over his last six games.

It's a far cry from the .274 career batting average Hernandez had in the lead-off spot over his first six years in the majors.

With the lineup out of sorts, the Phillies are nearing the midway point of the 2019 season with nothing more than a pedestrian offense.

In 68 games, the Phillies rank 16th in runs per game, 19th in hits, and 21st in home runs.

After adding the likes of Harper and Realmuto over the winter to an offense already featuring Rhys Hoskins, this isn't going according to plan.

But Phillies manager Gabe Kapler isn't panicking, yet.

"I think we're going to hit home runs," he said (h/t Phillies.com). "Would have I expected that's where we'd rank? Probably not. Do I expect us to rank there at the end of the season? I don't. I think we have power up and down the lineup. We have guys who have a history of hitting home runs. I expect that trend to continue."

Kapler will have to figure things out quickly, however, as a series with the division-leading Braves in Atlanta is next this weekend.

At this point, it's only logical to move Hernandez out of the lead-off spot and shuffle things around to guarantee as much support as possible for the big bats.

If the offense doesn't show up down south, the Phillies could suddenly be facing a substantial deficit in the NL East, especially with the New York Mets just 4.5 games behind them for second place.

Sports betting 101: Soccer wagering

SugarHouse Casino's sportsbook manager dishes out the basics of sports betting.

JIM LLEWELLYN

Jim Llewellyn is the sportsbook manager at SugarHouse Casino.

GETTY IMAGES

With the United States women's national team set for another deep run in the FIFA Women's World Cup, today we take a look at how to bet on soccer.

Variety is king when wagering on the "beautiful game," and no bet is the most popular.

A "three-way line" includes not only betting on the favorite or underdog, but also the third option of choosing that the game finishes in a draw.

Right now at MetroBet.us/Sugar there are plenty of options to bet on Sunday's USA vs. Chile game. The U.S. women are -5000 favorites — meaning if you bet $100 on them winning, and they win, you earn a $2 profit. When betting on a heavy favorite, you risk a lot to win a little.

The goal line (a two-way line) is another type of soccer bet. For instance, Team A may be -2.5 (-160) on the goal line. If you think Team A is going to win by three goals or more, you would bet $160 to win $100 profit.

Totals are also quite popular in soccer, and this is certainly relevant for the prolific-scoring United States team that scored a record-setting 13 goals against Thailand on Tuesday. For USA vs. Chile, the total goals odds are 5.5 (over +120, under -159) at MetroBet.us/Sugar. That's high for soccer, but Team USA is more than capable of going over, even if Chile is shut out. If you bet $100 on the over (+120) in this game, you would win $120 and get a payout of $220 ($120 + $100 bet) if both teams combine for six goals or more.

There's also a wide variety of intriguing prop bets on all Women's World Cup games right now at MetroBet.us/Sugar including:

- Will both teams score?
- Pick the correct score
- Total corner kicks
- First goal scorer

Phillies versus Braves game pick

Phillies starter Nick Pivetta (4-1, 4.93 ERA) and Braves starter Max Fried (7-3, 3.75 ERA) are trending in totally opposite directions entering their Friday matchup at SunTrust Park. Bettors should confidently back the road team in this one, at least in the first five innings market. Pivetta has allowed just one earned run in his last 15 innings of work, which occurred during a complete game six-hitter against the Reds. Since returning to the big leagues on May 28, the Canada native has struck out 21 batters while walking just two (three starts). Pivetta has a wealth of experience against the Braves, mostly positive. Atlanta left fielder Ronald Acuna Jr. and second baseman Ozzie Albies are a combined 3-for-24 all-time against Friday's starter for Philadelphia.

Fried has pitched to a 5.82 ERA in his last four starts for the Braves. His WHIP in that span is an inflated 1.754. The Phillies are among the better teams in baseball at hitting lefties, ranking 10th in batting average at .259. Utility man Scott Kingery (1.010 OPS), outfielder Jay Bruce (1.201 OPS) and catcher J.T. Realmuto (.924 OPS) are among the hottest bats in Philly's lineup at the moment.

Get excited, Philadelphia!

Legal online sports betting has finally arrived in the state of Pennsylvania as METROBET.US/SUGAR allows you to wager on all the games from the comfort of your couch.

There's plenty of incentive to bet with METROBET.US/SUGAR as if you join now you will get an exclusive first-deposit match bonus for up to $250 by using promo code: METROBET

How to sign up

Signing up to bet on live sports online is as easy as can be.

Step 1: Go to METROBET.US/SUGAR

Step 2: Make sure you are taking advantage of the Pennsylvania betting option instead of the New Jersey option. At the top of the page you may see the option, "Not in New Jersey? Switch to Pennsylvania."

Be sure to be on the PA page.

Step 3: Click "Join now"!

Step 4: Enter a Screen Name to use for betting, as well as an email address and password to access the METROBET.US/SUGAR site.

GETTY IMAGES

Step 5: Enter promo code METROBET

Step 6: Go to "Cashier" in the upper-right-hand corner and make a deposit.

Step 7: You're now ready to bet on live sports!

Site navigation

The METROBET.US/SUGAR website is straightforward and easy to use for first-time bettors. On the left-hand side of the page you will see a "My Bet History" option, a "Jackpot Parlay" option and options to bet on multiple sports like the NBA, MLB, NHL, NFL, golf, soccer and more.

For example, if you wanted to bet on tonight's Phillies vs. Braves game, you would simply click on "MLB" in the left-hand column. There you will find all of the betting odds on every MLB game on the slate that day.

If you want to bet on the Phillies, you would click on the blue button with the current Phillies odds (such as PHI Phillies +125).

Once you click on the blue button, a betting slip will pop up in the bottom-right-hand corner. There you enter how much money you want to wager.

Happy betting!

2019 US Open golf tournament a major betting event

Though the fickle game of golf doesn't always bounce true, this weekend's U.S. Open at Pebble Beach could be the biggest betting event in the sport's history. Holding back growth in the past had been the reality that betting the futures board to root for a winner all weekend isn't very fun. And, betting head-to-head matchups felt too much like baseball, which turns away those flummoxed by moneyline math. Familiarity is breeding contentment as more bettors learn the ropes. Among the main factors driving the surge: *Squares love betting on favorites that dominate. Golf now features a few stars capable of bullying the field when playing their very best. Brooks Koepka has humbled foes in recent majors. Dustin Johnson can put a course in a chokehold. Last weekend, Rory McIlroy reminded everyone he has an extra gear that can leave a field in his dust. There's still significant residual interest in Tiger Woods, virtual muscle memory from his career peak (same for Phil Mickelson). Golf wouldn't explode as a betting sport if it consisted only of finesse players offering possible long-shot value.

Flyers in middle of 2020 Stanley Cup pack

Vegas released its odds for next year's NHL title.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

It's never too early to think about next year.

As the St. Louis Blues start their celebrations with the Stanley Cup after a seven-game triumph over the Boston Bruins, Westgate Sportsbook in Las Vegas has already released its odds on who will take next year's crown.

To put it plainly, the odds are not too bad for the Flyers.

Vegas has the Flyers tabbed at 25-1 favorites to win the Cup, which ranks 14th out of 31 NHL teams.

The Flyers are coming off their worst year — with just 82 points — since the disastrous 2006-07 campaign that yielded just 56 points.

But major changes have come through the organization, including the hiring of veteran head coach Alain Vigneault. The former Canucks and Rangers bench boss brought in a new staff that includes notable former head coaches like Mike Yeo and Michel Therrien.

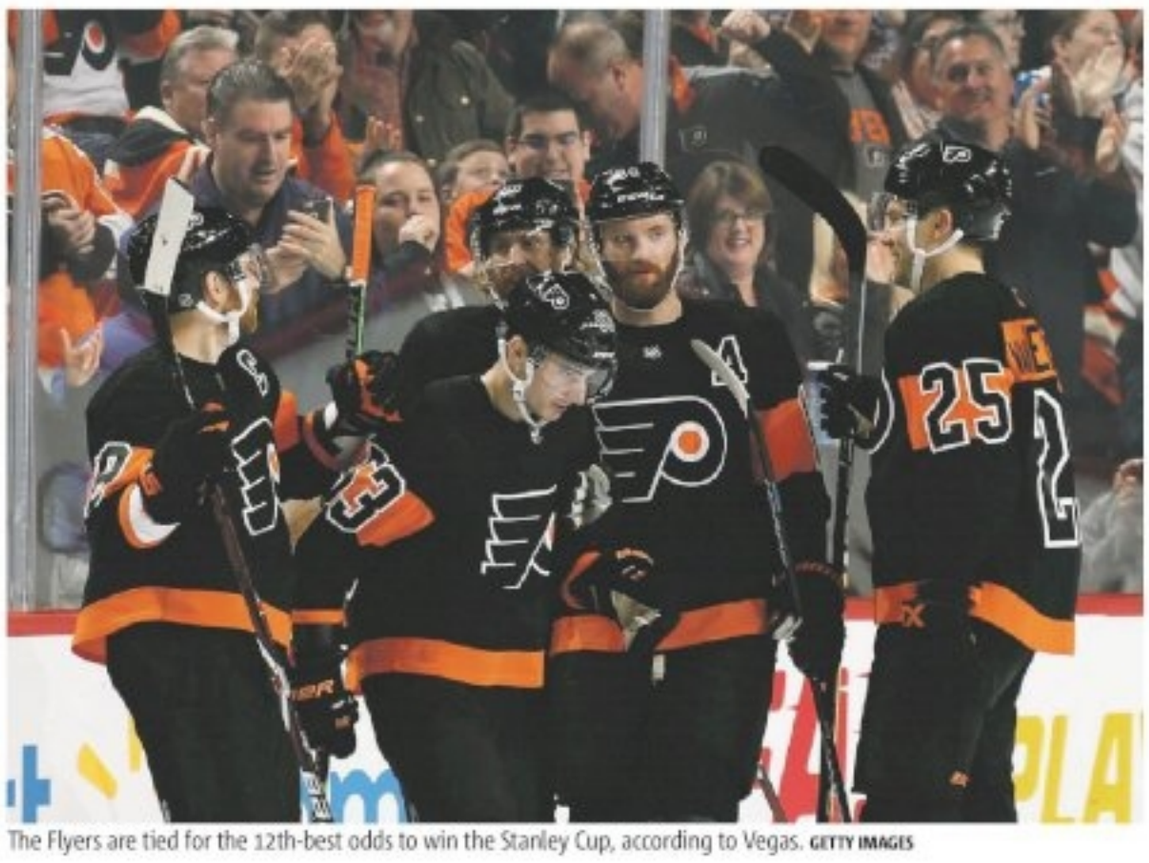
General manager Chuck Fletcher will now be tasked on bringing on the perfect upgrades needed to get back to the playoffs.

The Flyers are in desperate need of scoring depth and have already attempted to make a move in the right direction, acquiring the rights of Kevin Hayes from the Winnipeg Jets.

Hayes, however, will be an unrestricted free agent on Jul. 1 if the Flyers are unable to sign him to a deal during their exclusive negotiating period.

Even with considerable work to do this offseason, Vegas has placed the Flyers ahead of notable playoff sides like the New York Islanders, Dallas Stars, and Carolina Hurricanes.

Here are the full odds below:



The Flyers are tied for the 12th-best odds to win the Stanley Cup, according to Vegas. GETTY IMAGES
